Madison sues in opioid fight

Attorney says goal is to join other cities and states

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

The City of Madison has filed suit against Purdue Pharma, Endo Health and several local "dealer defendants" as the first step toward joining a nationwide class action lawsuit against the drugmaker and its subsidiaries in connection with marketing practices that may have contributed to a local, state and nationwide opioid epidemic.

At the heart of the suit is the city's belief that Purdue Pharma's drugs — powerful pain killers OxyContin and Percocet and their generic versions like oxycodone and hydrocodone — are addictive and harmful when used longterm but the company has intentionally and deceptively marketed them in a way that understates those risks leading to a nationwide opioid addiction epidemic.

The suit says opioids eventually became the most prescribed class of drugs in the U.S., generating $11 billion in revenue for drug companies while addicting users and leaving communities to deal with increased health, criminal and social issues that have been a hardship on the drug users, their families and the communities.

Joe Jenner, attorney for the city, said the goal is for the city's lawsuit, filed in Jefferson Circuit Court last week, to not stay there but instead be joined with a nationwide class action involving at least 2,000 other states, counties, cities and villages in the U.S. with more joining every day. There has been significant movement in that class action claim recently, he said, so it was decided that the time was right for Madison to join litigation.

Purdue Pharma, a privately held pharmaceutical company worth billions headquartered in Stamford, Connecticut, has already settled a similar lawsuit with the State of Oklahoma for $270 million and other state and local governments are now lining up for what they hope will be their share of an even bigger settlement.

Jenner said the city opted to join the suit after neighboring Scott County filed suit earlier. He said Madison's suit, patterned after Scott County's, is

Walls come tumbling down

Workers were using an excavator Wednesday to demolish part of a house on Indiana 56 to make room for the new Milton-Madison Bridge approach on U.S. 421 while pallets of rock sat at the site after a historic stone wall was removed in preparation for the work. The road work, called Project 421 with a $9.5 million cost, will reconstruct the new bridge approach to the city to replace the intersection at Second Street and U.S. 421. New company for Jeff also seen as good for the region

Monday's announcement that a privately-held health care solutions provider will create up to 850 new jobs by 2023 at the River Ridge Commerce Center in Jeffersonville was well received locally.

Louisville-based PharmaCord, which offers customized patient support services for the life sciences industry, will initially lease two floors at the America Place Gallery Building and later construct and equip an 80,000-square-foot facility at 850 Trey St. The new building, which will serve as a state-of-the-art call and operations center, will allow PharmaCord to enhance its patient access and support services while continuing to grow its client base of pharmaceutical companies. PharmaCord plans to be fully moved into the initial expansion site by August 2019.

The prospect of having 850 well-paying jobs in neighboring Clark County and the continued growth of the commerce center there, could have an impact on surrounding counties including Jefferson.

"The announcement was great for the entire southern Indiana region," said Matt Wirth, executive director of the Jefferson County Industrial Development Corporation. "River Ridge Commerce Center is a key to economic development for the whole region and has the capability to lift the whole area up. They've done a great job of recruiting industry."

Some of the jobs that will be in high demand at PharmaCord include: nurses, pharmacists, case managers, data scientists and program managers but the facility will also need everything from those to janitorial and security workers.

Wirth said it's "a little too early" to assess how the project might impact Jefferson County specifically but based on the announced plans a "wide variety of careers

Funds, cemetery care, multi-sport facility before council

Madison City Council met for 46 minutes Wednesday night, hearing requests for more funds for youth and the elderly, concerns about the future of Springdale Cemetery, the implementation of a four-way stop for Vaughn and West streets, a proposal for a new multi-sport court facility, and the impact of the recent wet weather on city operations.

And, it officially welcomed a new member to the Madison Police Department.

• Councilman Darrell Henderson reported that Springdale Cemetery is facing financial difficulties and any help the public can provide in the form of donations would be appreciated. The city has already assigned workers who are part of the Department of Corrections program to mow and trim at the cemetery but there are other costs as well. Mayor Damon Welch said that although the cemetery is privately owned, it is a former city cemetery and if the group that oversees the site can no longer do that, ownership would revert back to the city.

• Mary Kay McCubbin spoke on behalf of the group proposing a multi-sport courts facility on the property that now includes River Chase Golf Course and Madison Elks Lodge 524 in downtown Madison. McCubbin said the property is owned by Indiana-Kentucky Electric Corporation but the company has agreed to allow its use by the city. The plan would be to revitalize two decaying tennis courts for use as tennis, pickleball, bocce and shuffleboard courts. The project would develop the existing tennis area into two tennis courts that could also be used as six pickleball courts with two shuffleboard courts on the end. The bocce ball court would be placed nearby. The project has already received some donations as well as a commitment for some matching funds. Grants and crowd funding will also be pursued. The overall cost has been estimated between $130,000 and $150,000 for the project and the group hopes the city will contribute since it will be the only facilty of its kind in the city and the only

Rain contributes to 1 death and 4 rescues in Kentucky

TAYLORSVILLE, Kentucky (AP) — Heavy rains led to the death of a man in Kentucky and the rescues of four other people Monday in two separate incidents, officials said.

The first call for help came as a family tried to drive over a flooded bridge in Taylorsville and was swept away by the fast-moving water.

Emergency crews were called to the water rescue early Monday and found a woman and two children alive, but they weren't able to immediately locate the man, Spencer County Sheriff Scott Herndon told news outlets. His body was found hours later.

The woman was found in the water holding onto a tree and the children were found downstream on a bank, Herndon said. He said it's a miracle they survived.

Meanwhile, about 100 miles east, crews in Stanton were called to a home that was smashed by a mudslide amid heavy rains and were able to rescue a 90-year-old woman from the debris.

Emergency workers arrived at the two-story home to find the mudslide had knocked the first floor from its foundations and caused the second floor to collapse on top of it, Stanton Fire Department Assistant Chief Eddie Barnes said.

He said rescuers located the woman under layers that included a floor and a brick wall. Barnes said it took rescuers from several different agencies about four hours to extricate her. He did not release her name.

Officials say the hillside behind the home wasn't stable and a nearby road remained closed.

Heavy rains moved through much of the state Sunday and early Monday and forecasters say storms could continue through much of the week.

Clay County declared a state of emergency because of damages from heavy rain and flooding.

County Emergency Management Director David Watson told WYMT-TV that officials knew of about $75,000 in damages to roads and bridges on Monday and there are still places that need to be checked out.

He said county crews have been sawing trees and clearing debris to try to keep roadways open.

In addition to the damage, the station reported nine people were forced to leave their homes because of high water.

Watson said people with home damage should document it for insurance purposes.

The Indiana Department of Natural Resources said Brown County State Park and its Abe Martin Lodge in Brown County near Nashville will remain closed to the public through Thursday because of a lack of a potable water supply caused by recent heavy rainfall.

The DNR said Tuesday there's still too much sediment from last weekend's heavy rainfall coming into its water system to allow the production of potable water. The park's water source is Ogle Lake inside the park.

It said with additional heavy rainfall predicted, closure beyond Thursday remains a day-by-day decision.

The park first closed at 4 p.m. Monday. Indiana officials confirmed that a 10th tornado struck Indiana as part of a weekend outbreak that damaged a school, a shopping mall and other buildings.

The National Weather Service issued the update Tuesday, saying the latest confirmed tornado was rated EF-0 and briefly touched down Saturday in Brown County.

The weather service earlier said that nine tornadoes hit, including three E-F2 tornadoes with winds up to 130 mph in Greene, Monroe and Rush counties and an EF-1 tornado in the Indianapolis enclave of Beech Grove that heavily damaged the high school.

Greene County has said Saturday's storms destroyed three homes and damaged about 70 others. A disaster declaration for the county was signed Tuesday by the county board's president, with hope of getting federal disaster funds.

Police checking whether dairy farm abuse was coerced

Indiana

FAIR OAKS — A prosecutor said investigators are looking into whether an animal rights group worker coerced employees at a large dairy farm into the abuse of young calves that was captured on undercover video. Newton County Prosecutor Jeff Drinski said a witness has corroborated allegations from an abuse suspect that the Animal Recovery Mission employee encouraged the abuse at Fair Oaks Farms. Drinski said detectives will try to interview the group's employee. Animal Recovery Mission founder Richard Couto called the allegation "ridiculous and absurd." He said none of the group's video shows any encouragement of abuse. The farm, a popular agritourism destination, has faced public backlash over videos released by the group.

Body of dog found after boat crash

MOMENCE, Illinois — The body of a dog has been found about 50 yards downstream from the spot where a boat carrying the pet and his owner crashed into a logjam on the Kankakee River in eastern Illinois. The Daily Journal reported Wednesday that Buster's body was recovered five days after the dog and 67-year-old Mike Stefano went into the water on June 8. Stefano, a former Chicago police officer, has not been found and is presumed drowned. James Hubona also was thrown from the boat, but was rescued by kayakers who tossed him a life jacket. Hubona said the boat went around in circles before hitting the logjam near the state line Illinois shares with Indiana.

Park fundraiser for slain Delphi teens

DELPHI — A public fundraising drive is on to help pay for construction of a memorial park for two teenage girls whose 2017 deaths while out on a northern Indiana recreation trail remains unsolved. Organizers for the 20-acre Abby and Libby Memorial Park near Delphi are hoping for $50,000 in online donations by August 14 to qualify for a state grant of the same amount. Work started in March, soon after the two-year mark for when 14-year-old Liberty German and 13-year-old Abigail Williams were killed. Abby's grandfather, Eric Erskin, said the combined $100,000 would show that organizers are serious about completing the park. Plans include softball fields, playgrounds, an amphitheater and picnic shelters. Erskin said many companies have agreed to do work for free or at reduced rates.

Community Corrections worker shot, wounded

AUBURN— Authorities say a pretrial services coordinator in northeastern Indiana has been accidentally shot and wounded during a training exercise. DeKalb County Community Corrections said the man was at the Auburn Police Department's training center when he "accidentally discharged a semi-automatic pistol" during a training exercise Monday. He was treated at a hospital and released after being shot in the right leg. The 35-year-old man is described as a five-year employee of Community Corrections.

Grant to continue youth-support services

FRANKFORT — A Kentucky agency said it has secured another $5 million federal grant to continue a program providing youth-support services. Kentucky's Department for Behavioral Health, Developmental and Intellectual Disabilities said the latest grant will continue the program through March 2024. The Transition Age Youth Launching Realized Dreams program allows youth ages 16 to 25 to easily access quality, developmentally appropriate, youth-driven support services. Officials say the goal is to help participants achieve their goals and transition into adulthood successfully. Officials say available services include expedited assistance in locating housing, mental health services and substance-abuse treatment. Since 2014, the program has helped more than 1,900 youth. Officials say youth and young adults can visit one of Kentucky's 20 drop-in sites to access behavioral health services.

Delivery man honored for rescuing girls

LEXINGTON— Police have honored a pizza delivery driver they say rescued two girls who were being abused by their father. The Lexington Herald-Leader reported Mark Buede was honored Tuesday by the Lexington Police Department. Police say Buede was delivering a pizza to an area motel last November and knocked on the door, which opened to reveal a man and a naked child on a bed behind him. Police say the scene caused Buede to alert authorities, who responded and found two girls hiding in the room. They say a subsequent investigation led authorities to believe the man had been abusing his daughters. Police didn't release the man's identity, but said he was charged with multiple offenses. Other people, including the involved officers, were also honored Tuesday.

FBI: 'No foul play' in national park death

PARK CITY — FBI officials say they think no foul play was involved in the death of a woman found in Mammoth Cave National Park. News outlets report the body of Mariah Amber Decru, 23, was discovered in a cemetery on park grounds in March. Investigators said they had determined the cause of death to be related to "acute diphenhydramine intoxication." She ingested too much of an antihistamine used in certain types of allergy and sleep medications, like Benadryl and ZzzQuil. The manner of death is listed as "undetermined" but authorities say no foul play is suspected.

Driver's license pilot program starts June 28

FRANKFORT— Transportation officials say they will begin issuing new driver's licenses this month that are designed to comply with a federal travel law. The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet said it will begin rolling out the licenses in Franklin County June 28 as part of a pilot program before the licenses are issued statewide. County driver's licensing offices will be closed June 27 to prepare. The pilot program will also include Woodford and Hart counties and the rollout dates there will be announced soon. Vehicle Regulation Commissioner Matt Henderson said that with the updates, Kentucky licenses will be "among the most secure in the nation." Other Kentucky counties will be added this summer after the test pilot ends.

Medical billing company plans to expand in state

NEWPORT — A medical billing services company is planning to expand operations in northern Kentucky, potentially creating 150 jobs. CompMed Ltd. is planning the $1.1 million expansion in Campbell County. The company plans to lease an additional 2,000 square feet of office space "in response to growing demand from new and existing customers." A statement from Gov. Matt Bevin's office said the project also includes new employee training and work spaces and new equipment. CompMed President Mike Stearns said the company plans to use the majority of the funds retained through tax incentives to ensure employees continue to work in a favorable and professional environment. The Newport-based company was founded in 1993 and provides billing services for over 25 different areas of medical need.

New Albany native, Miss Indiana St. is new Miss Indiana

By DAVE TAYLOR
(Terre Haute) Tribune-Star

Tiarra Taylor, the current Miss Indiana State University, will be putting at least a portion of her senior year on hold.

The 21-year-old was selected as Miss Indiana Saturday from a field of 36 contestants at the Zionsville High School Performing Arts Center and will be competing later this year for Miss America.

"It still feels like a dream," Taylor said Sunday.

It was the New Albany native's third state pageant. She previously competed as Miss ISU in 2018 and in 2019 as Miss Harvest Homecoming, a program based in her hometown. She said the key to her success was simply being herself.

"I truly went into the competition 110 percent Tiarra. I think the judges saw that," she said. "Just being me and being confident in that they were able to get to know me on a really personal level and that spoke volumes."

Taylor is a social studies education major at Indiana State. Her Miss Indiana platform focuses on bringing advantages to disadvantaged youth.

"It's all about empowering young people," she said, whether they are disadvantaged due to economics, growing up in low income housing, as a minority or among the growing number of youths in child protective services.

Taylor is working to provide youth with the "tools, resources and opportunities that they need to live and thrive."

This was the first Miss Indiana program without a swimsuit competition and Taylor said she's "OK" with that.

"It allows women who don't feel comfortable in a swimsuit to feel as though they can get on the Miss Indiana stage and compete. Either way … the core value and mission of the program never changed. It was just a phase of the competition that was removed."

As she did when she won the Miss ISU title last fall, Taylor again relied on her vocal ability for the talent portion of the competition.

Instead of the Etta James classic "At Last" that wowed

the Terre Haute audience in October, she performed "She Used to Be Mine" — the Sara Bareilles song from "Waitress," the stage adaptation of the 2007 movie.

Taylor is quick to give credit to others for helping her achieve success, starting with God.

"I would not have been up there if it wasn't for him giving me the strength and confidence to make it to [Miss] Indiana," she said.

"I would never have expected him to have placed me in the role of Miss Indiana, but he did and I'm so grateful and excited to serve the state of Indiana."

She said Miss ISU board members Freda Luers, Al Perone and Regina Atkins pushed her to succeed.

"We are so incredibly proud of Tiarra," said Luers, co-director of the Miss ISU Scholarship Program.

"She worked very hard over the past few months preparing for the Miss Indiana week of competition. We are confident Tiarra will continue to be a positive representative of Indiana State University and now the entire state."

Luers said others in the campus community and colleagues in Terre Haute joined the Miss ISU Board in supporting Taylor.

The new Miss Indiana also thanked her mom, Tasha Bland, for staying behind her.

"If it was not for my mom and my family members supporting me endlessly I don't think I would have made it," she said.

"It takes a village. People say that often and it's true … I'm most thankful for my village."

Owen County fair board members face criminal checks

By LAURA LANE
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

SPENCER — Criminal background checks of Owen County Fair Board members will be conducted this week, and anyone who does not pass will be expelled from the board during a meeting next week.

While no one addressed the obvious, fair board President Dave Davies will be ineligible to remain on the board because of a 2018 conviction for distribution of material harmful to a minor. Jurors found him guilty of showing a sexually explicit video to a 14-year-old student at the middle school where he was a teacher.

There are seven crimes that automatically disqualify a board member, and any crime against a minor is among them.

During a sometimes contentious meeting Monday night at the fairgrounds, Owen County Sheriff Sam Hobbs told board members he needed the background check paperwork from all 13 board members right away. Just four had already submitted the forms.

And Hobbs warned that any decisions will be made by an advisory board that includes representatives from law enforcement agencies and the prosecutor's office.

"I want to be firm, fair and consistent, and I need the background check information tonight," the sheriff said. "And I want you'uns to understand something: when this comes before the advisory board, the decision will be final. Whatever decision they make, it's gonna stand."

He said the advisory board will not consider or discuss any convictions that fall on the list of seven; the member will be gone.

A motion by board member Mike Mader to delay the entire background check process in order to clarify contractual concerns he raised about the process failed. Board member Lillian Pursell said not proceeding is disrespectful to children, 4-H and the fair, which is July 6-13.

As the discussion continued, fair board Secretary Annette Thompson handed in her resignation and walked out the door.

Board Vice President Jeff Hamilton echoed concerns others have raised. "I'm afraid that if we do this (delay background checks), a lot of kids and families will stay away from the fair," said.

Bill Pursell attended the meeting and expressed worry about the fair, which kicks off in less than three weeks. Pre-fair events, such as the dog show and baby contest, start in just four days.

He urged board members to proceed with background checks. "We have vendors who say they won't come, and we have sponsors who say they are pulling out," Pursell said.

Mader alleged that the background check process is being put in place to target Davies.

Longtime fair board member Cassie Abrell is a background check advocate who has made known her desire for Davies to resign or be removed. She was upset after last week's fair board meeting, where members narrowly voted to add crimes against children to the list of disqualifying convictions.

She said at least one family has removed its children from 4-H over the issue, "and others are considering the same." She said the fair board must address the community's concerns and implement the policy now.

She said the future of the Owen County 4-H Fair is at stake.

"We have learned that there are local businesses concerned about supporting the county fair this year," Abrell said. "What should be a concern to our community is that there was a 6-5 vote when we voted to disqualify anyone with convictions against a minor."

IDEM approves coal-to-diesel air permit for proposed plant in Dale

By OLIVIA INGLE
(Jasper) Herald

DALE — The Indiana Department of Environmental Management has approved an air permit for Riverview Energy to build a $2.5 billion coal-to-diesel plant in Dale.

After nearly a year and a half of review, the permit was issued Tuesday, according to an air quality permit search on the state agency's website.

The plant would be the U.S.'s first direct coal-hydrogenation project. The process, Riverview has said, would make ultra-low sulfur diesel fuel, but would not burn or gasify coal.

The plant would use 1.6 million tons of coal and produce 4.8 million barrels of clean diesel and 2.5 million barrels of Naphtha each year.

"This is an integral step in the process of bringing the direct coal-hydrogenation plant to Dale," Riverview Energy President Gregory Merle said in a press release.

Riverview announced early last year that they planned to bring the plant to more than 500 acres of land annexed into the Town of Dale in 2017. The Lincolnland Economic Development Corp. is responsible for recruiting the company to the area.

Proponents of Riverview say the plant would boost the local economy and bring much-needed jobs to the area.

Riverview has said the plant will bring 225 permanent, high-skilled jobs and more than 2,000 temporary construction jobs.

However, those in opposition — which include advocacy groups Valley Watch, Earthjustice and Southwestern Indiana Citizens for Quality of Life — believe it creates environmental, health and quality of life concerns.

Mary Hess, leader of Southwestern Indiana Citizens for Quality of Life, said that even with air permit approval, her group will not stop their fight.

"We're going to keep going," she said. "We've got some irons in the fire that we're working on. We're going to be very vigilant on this as it moves forward or if it doesn't move forward, whichever way."

A summary handed out at an IDEM public hearing in December stated that IDEM's role in the air permitting process is to determine if the permit complies with federal and state laws. It stated that if a permit applicant, such as Riverview, "demonstrates that it will be able to comply with all federal and state laws regarding air pollution control, IDEM is required by law to issue the air permit."

Middletown, township go on with merger talks to try to keep local control over tax dollars

By KEN De La BASTIDE
(Anderson) Herald Bulletin

MIDDLETOWN – Local residents were provided with the procedures that will be used to consider merging Middletown with Fall Creek Township in Henry County.

During a Monday meeting with town and township officials, residents asked about the potential costs of developing a consolidation plan and how a consolidated government entity would operate.

A meeting was set for 6 p.m. July 9 at the Middletown Municipal Building to begin forming subcommittees to start work on a comprehensive plan.

Jake Smith, president of the Middletown Town Council, said no votes were being taken and the meeting was for the gathering of information.

"We want to discuss facts, not rumors," he said.

Kyle Hall, president of the Fall Creek Township Advisory Board, said the intent of the consolidation is to better use the resources to benefit the town and township.

"We want to see if there are duplication of services and a more efficient use of tax dollars," he said. "We want to consider the options."

Steve Thompson, Fall Creek Township trustee, said if the consolidation moves forward it would create a new governmental entity.

He said if the state decides later to require the consolidation of small townships or the elimination of township government, residents would still have control over the local tax dollars.

Paige Sansone of consulting firm Baker Tilly estimated the cost of the fiscal analysis would be $20,000 to $25,000.

She said it was the cost of one component of a comprehensive plan on how the consolidated unit of government would function in the future.

Joel Harvey, attorney for the town of Middletown, said the comprehensive plan would decide who would provide services and how the new entity would operate.

"It can provide different levels of service," he said. "Township residents are not responsible for the Middletown debt."

Thompson said there would continue to be different property tax rates for the township and town property owners if the consolidation occurs.

Harvey said both Middletown and Fall Creek Township will be required to conduct public hearings on the reorganization plan. He said either governmental body could approve, deny or amend the plan.

Harvey said adoption will require 51 percent of the registered voters in both the town and township voting for approval.

He said a referendum vote would probably not take place until November 2020.

Sansone said the fiscal impact and the consolidation of the two units of government are the biggest part of the planning process to be undertaken.

"There needs to be a mission statement," she said, "outlining why the consolidation is being considered."

Sansone said a reorganization committee must be appointed first and then subcommittees formed to consider such areas as government structure, public safety, parks, streets and township assistance.

"The subcommittees need to look at what services will be provided, will there be a change in the level of services being provided, and will it require additional staffing and resources," she said.

"What will be the cost and what areas will be served," Sansone said. "There needs to be a cost estimate to determine what works best for taxpayers."

Thompson, who is spearheading the effort, said the community needs to be proactive in seeking the most efficient use of government services.

"This brings the community together," he said. "We can consolidate the money and could include zoning and planning capabilities instead of relying on the county."

Thompson said the goal is to develop a plan the taxpayers will support or they will vote it down.

could be in play."

With 850 jobs forecast, some of those could be filled by Jefferson County residents. In addition, landing a business like PharmaCord in nearby Jeffersonville could make Jefferson County a more desirable location for other industries looking to locate or expand in southern Indiana.

"That's my end game," Wirth said of the massive business and industrial center. "We want to take over some of what they can't fit in down there. It's a good win for the whole region."

At the same time, some of workers that will be hired by PharmaCord could be current employees of businesses and industries in Jefferson County where the unemployment rate runs about 3 percent annually. If Jefferson County workers take jobs there, local jobs will have to be filled by new workers. However, Wirth said, he doesn't see that having a big impact locally and it's an issue that should be far outweighed by the opportunities the company will bring to the region.

"I don't see a downside to it. We may lose a few of our workforce to it but overall it's a positive development for the entire area," Wirth said. "To our benefit, our folks are very competitive in their wages."

He also noted that with education and training programs at Ivy Tech and Madison Consolidated Schools preparing more local people to fill skilled jobs all the time, the local workforce should be ready to shift with the needs of local employers and places like PharmaCord.

"Ivy Tech is working very hard on developing those skill sets to develop a skilled workforce. Madison Schools, too, for that matter," Wirth noted.

PharmaCord said it will invest more than $52 million to launch its Indiana operations.

"It's an exciting day for Indiana and the City of Jeffersonville as we welcome PharmaCord to the Hoosier state," said Gov. Eric J. Holcomb. "Indiana has quickly established itself as a global leader in life sciences, gaining national recognition and attracting new businesses from around the world. I'm confident that Indiana's pro-business environment and talented workforce will allow the company to grow and thrive here as they work to deliver critical health care solutions."

To support its rapid growth, PharmaCord, which has about 150 employees, plans to begin hiring immediately for customer service representatives, benefit specialists, case managers and specialty nurses. Interested applicants may apply online.

"It was important to us to find an expansion site that would not only afford us the space to grow and fulfill our potential as a company, but also to expand our presence in the Louisville metro area," said Nitin Sahney, founder and CEO of PharmaCord. "River Ridge Commerce Center and America Place provided us with a world-class facility, while still being convenient and close to our existing offices in Louisville. I believe this new location will give us the space and ability to support future pharmaceutical client programs while creating more jobs in health care for the Metro area. We are very excited about this decision and its implications for the continued growth of PharmaCord."

Founded by Sahney in 2017, PharmaCord offers a full suite of commercialized health care solutions designed to increase accessibility, clinical oversight and market acceptance of prescription therapy. The company links reimbursement services, mail-order pharmacy operations, care coordination, clinical services and patient assistance programs through a unique technology-based platform. PharmaCord's patient-centric approach of integrating services helps streamline and enhance the therapy experience, which in turn, improves access to quality health care.

"On behalf of the City of Jeffersonville, I'd like to thank PharmaCord for choosing America Place, in the River Ridge Commerce Center, as the location for its expansion," said Jeffersonville Mayor Mike Moore. "The growth of both residential and commercial activities along East 10th Street and Highway 62, as well as the attraction of new or expanding businesses, have been driven by the development of the River Ridge Commerce Center, as well as the city's $7.5 million investment in the East 10th Street area. "

Pending approval from the Indiana Economic Development Corporation board of directors, the IEDC will offer PharmaCord up to $7.85 million in conditional tax credits based on the company's job creation plans and up to $1.2 million in conditional tax credits from the Hoosier Business Investment tax credit program based on the company's planned capital investment in Indiana.

These tax credits are performance-based, meaning until Hoosiers are hired, the company is not eligible to claim incentives.

PharmaCord will join more than 1,750 companies contributing to a strong and growing life sciences industry in Indiana.

According to BioCrossroads and the Indiana Business Research Center, Indiana is the second largest exporter of life sciences products in the U.S. at $10.2 billion in total exports.

Together, these companies support more than 56,000 Hoosier jobs with average wages of about $97,600 annually.

• Madison sues

is aimed at both making social change — by forcing Purdue Pharma to change its marketing tactics — and recouping some of the money communities have spent on dealing with the opioid crisis.

"We'd like to gain some social change in regards to this opioid epidemic that's running rampant across the entire country, but that takes dollars and cents so we hope to recoup some of that money from the drug companies," Jenner said.

The suit contends that Purdue Pharma used its vast financial resources to fund marketing strategies to misinform doctors and the public on the dangers of opioid use — especially long term — and pursuade doctors to prescribe the drugs and patients to take the drugs. The alleged deceptions included advertising, information shared by drug sales representatives and speakers at conferences all to misrepresent the risks and benefits of opioids directly contrary to other scientific evidence.

Madison Mayor Damon Welch said he supports the city pursuing the lawsuit as long as it goes after the companies and its people who carried out those misrepresentations and not local doctors and medical facilities who were trying to treat their patients based on the information they had received.

"My only concern is I'm not for just suing everybody to try to rip people off to make money, but I was assured there was some wrongdoing done by certain entities and that's what this is all about — to go after the ones that were truly doing things the wrong way," Welch said.

"I agreed to do that because we are obviously like every other community in that we've had a lot of issues with drug use in our area and if that can be traced back to some things that weren't done right by some of the drug companies and things like that we should join the suit," Welch added. "I'm in no way after any of the hospitals in our area — that's not what this was all about — or any doctors."

Welch said Madison has long dealt with addiction problems but that the rampant abuse of opioids has exacerbated that issue in recent years. As the government has begun to take action to curb opioid abuse by making the pills harder to get, some of the addicted have turned to other drugs such as illegally manufactured and sold methamphetamine, which is now seen as the area's top drug problem.

"It's more of a meth problem now in our community. It's kind of changed in the last year or two," Welch said. "We hear a lot about opioids but its an alcohol and drug problem. It's not just the opioids. I think it's just a mixture of all of that and it affects every part of your daily life.

"In economic development if you have people out here who can't function because they're addicted to something they cannot be productive and not only that but they become a burden, not only to their family members, but to the government because moneys have to go into treatment and things of that nature so it affects every part of our life — of our daily lives — and our quality of life here," Welch said. "It's definitely a huge concern and every mayor I talk to is dealing with the same thing. You can go to any community just about in the country and find the same reaction.

"I think the police will tell you 85 or 90 percent, or even higher, of crime you can relate to drug use and addiction," Welch said. "Of course we know suicide is definitely related to the addiction situation, so it affects everything."

The city's lawsuit asks that the drug companies' actions be decreed unlawful and that the city "recover all measure of damages allowable" under state statutes and "recover restitution on behalf of the City of Madison consumers who paid for opioids for chronic pain."

That would include an award of civil penalties for "deceptive acts" and expenses, "reasonable" attorneys' fees and that the manufacturing defendants be ordered to "abate the public nuisance that they created in violation of Indiana common law" and be ordered to pay "punitive and treble damages."

tennis courts in the downtown area.

• Police Chief Jeremey Perkins reported the city will move forward with a four-way stop at the intersection of Vaughn Drive and West Street along the riverfront. He said the development and increased use of Bicentennial Park and the city's restrooms there has added pedestrian traffic in the area and a four-way stop and crosswalks will make the area safer for those walking in the area.

•Trent Smith was sworn in as newest officer with the Madison Police Department.

• Troy Hedges, director of the Jefferson County Youth Shelter, requested an increase in city support from $7,500 this year to $8,000 next year. He said the Shelter, now in its 32nd year, housed 44 children in 2018 for total of 1611 days — up from 36 in 2017 and 1582 days.

• Erin Thomas on behalf of Lifetime Resources requested an allocation of $23,850 next year to serve older adults, disabled and caregivers including the Catch-A-Ride program.

• City Attorney Joe Jenner reported the Victorian Inn is "for the most part abiding by the agreement" reached last month to close that facility to occupancy. He said a few people have been in and out to retrieve belongings but nobody is currently living at the Inn.

• Councilmember Jan Vetrhus reported that, weather allowing, concrete is scheduled to be poured Friday for a sculpture that will be at Bicentennial Park with the artwork installed next week and a party celebrating the development and the park's 10th anniversary later in July. The Bicentennial Legacy Gift Committee, the Jefferson County Public Library and the Madison Area Arts Alliance worked together to arrange for the piece of art that was commissioned 10 years after the city celebrated its bicentennial.

• Parks Director Dave Stucker said wet weather and thunderstorms have distrupted a large number of scheduled park activities over the past two weeks such as ballgames and pool activities including swimmer education. Stucker said the department will try to reschedule as many events as possible and look at options to use other fields like Kiwanis Park for youth league games to try to play catch up. He said options for making up swimmer education, now in its final week of the summer's first session, might be tougher and that some refunds might have to be issued if the affected participants cannot be rescheduled in the second session beginning in July.

• Building Inspector Mark Johnson said weather issues have slowed contruction projects but that several projects are underway including an expansion at Arvin Sango to accommodate a new press, a cold storage facility at Madison Consolidated High School that will allow a relocation of the current storage facility and maintenance building with the existing space to be used by Cub Manufacturing. Johnson also said the River Terrace Health Campus in the former King's Daughters' Hospital building downtown will soon begin a phase to convert the former hospital emergency room into eight new housing units for residents including six private rooms, two studio rooms and a sitting room.

• Utility manager Brian Jackson said recent heavy rainfall has served as a good test on the funcationality of improvements to the city's wastewater system. All equipment seems to be handling the deluge without incident and there have been no discharges of raw sewage. Jackson also reported that the city's annual report on water quality soon will be mailed to all customers and that the U.S. Geological Survey will conduct tests on the city's water well No. 7 this summer as part of an overall study of the acquifer throughout the Ohio Valley.

Charlie's Beat

Two more venues join ranks of Indiana's Music City

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

First of all, the phrase "Indiana's Music City" is a thing I'm trying to make happen. You can help make it stick just by repeating it and using it when you talk about Madison. It's a way of branding our community, but it's also reality. I can't think of another small Hoosier town that has as much good live music as we do.

But if we're really going to be Indiana's Music City, we have to have lots of venues where live music is consistently happening. On any given Saturday night, you can catch a show at the Taproom, Thomas Family Winery, L&L Lounge, and The Lighthouse. The Moose, VFW and Legion are also pretty consistent. But we need more.

Now I'm happy to say we have two more venues trying to jumpstart weekly music at their establishments. Rembrandt's Gallery & Wine Bar is trying to showcase Thursday nights as a place for classical and jazz. And Mad Paddle Brewery is starting to build an audience for Sunday afternoon acoustic folk and classic rock.

I use phrases like "trying to jumpstart" because it's very much a chicken-or-egg process. They need a consistent audience to drive the revenue to pay musicians. But they need the musicians to provide entertainment to draw the audience. Which comes first?

That's why the two owners are starting with volunteer, open-mic type of music, to prime the pump and get the flow going. "We're looking for anyone who wants to bring their instrument and play a set of classical, traditional, or jazz music," said Bob Maile, owner of Rembrandt's.

Rembrandt's Gallery & Wine Bar is trying to showcase Thursday nights as a place for classical and jazz.

Mad Paddle Brewery is starting to build an audience for Sunday afternoon acoustic folk and classic rock.

"We'd also welcome duos or trios," Bob continued. "We have a very nice Yamaha grand piano on our performance stage. The idea is to start building an appreciative audience for good, quality music in a warm friendly atmosphere, and then we can expand and start hiring musicians for Saturday nights."

Jerry Wade is doing something very similar at Mad Paddle Brewery on West Street.

"We took a look at Sunday afternoons where nothing much is going on in town, and thought why not bring in live music, provide a fun, lively destination for locals and visitors.

"We decided to invite local musicians to play for tips for the first six weeks or so, to get it going, and then we're going to start hiring talent after that, see if we can make it a full time thing.

"We kicked it off in late May and it's been very successful," Jerry said. "We've had a number of different acoustic duos and solo acts. And we have an Irish music band called West of Dublin coming in this Sunday, which should be different and fun."

Looking to the future, Jerry Wade sees nothing but growth potential. "I love live music, and it's good for business. If Sundays continue to draw an audience we'll keep that going indefinitely, and we might look at other nights too, like Fridays or even Saturdays."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK:

I've made no secret of the fact that I love Jordan Wilson and his band. He's at the Taproom Friday, and if you come, I know you'll love him too. Other good bets are Clocgheann doing the Celtic thing at Thomas Family Winery Saturday night, and you can get a double dose of the Irish with West of Dublin playing at Mad Paddle Sunday afternoon. Get out there and enjoy Indiana's Music City people!

Jefferson County at 25% in '19 spring vote

INDIANAPOLIS — The May primary vote turnout in Madison was well above the state average, which was reported Wednesday by Secretary of State Connie Lawson. Lawson said 13 percent of eligible Hoosiers voted in the May 7 municipal primary election.

There were 9,806 registered voters elligible to participate in the Madison primary of which 2,451 actually voted, making a 25 percent turnout. Of that total, 602 opted to cast an absentee ballot while 2,451 actually went to the polls on election day. Not all Hoosier voters were eligible to vote in the municipal elections. Only voters who live in a city or town with an election this year or in a school corporation conducting a construction or tax levy referendum were eligible to vote.

Of the overall 2,451 votes cast in Madison, 1,587 were on the Republican ballot with Bob G. Courtney winning 973-614 over Andrew K. Forrester and 716 were on the Democratic ballot in which Julie A. Berry defeated Bryan Hernandez 633-83. The highest turnout in the state was in Martin and Rush counties where the Loogootee mayor, city clerk and council seats were on the ballot in Martin and the Rushville mayor and council seats in Rush.

"Congratulations to Martin County and Rush County for posting the highest turnout in the state with 35 percent each," Lawson said. "I hope to see more counties have a higher turnout rate this fall. When Hoosier voters are engaged, it benefits the entire state, and I will continue to leverage the resources of my office to ensure fair and accessible elections in every Indiana county."

Voter registration is now open for the municipal general election, which will be Tuesday, Nov. 5, 2019. If a voter voted in a past election and resides at the same address, there is no need to re-register.

The report was compiled by the Indiana Election Division from voter data gathered in 69 of Indiana's 92 counties. There were 23 counties in Indiana this year that did not have a primary election.

Man rescued after trapped in Milton cistern

Courier staff report

A Trimble County man had to be rescued Monday after he became trapped in a hole around a cistern at his home on Powell Hill Road near Milton.

According to Milton Fire and Rescue Chief Jason E. Long, the man was attempting to fill in an area around a existing cistern on the property at about 8:46 p.m. when the ground became unstable and collapsed, trapping one of his legs in the hole up to his waist.

"It was a mixture of sand and water and mud and it just collapsed kind of like quicksand," said Long. "He wasn't complaining of injuries or anything but he was pretty muddy. He just needed help getting out."

The man, Dave Sloane, was "working to stop baby kittens from becoming lost" according to his Facebook page and a misstep buried his left leg to the hip in sand and water.

Long said the rescue took about 45 minutes to complete and Milton Fire & Rescue was assisted at the scene by Madison's Clifty Six Fire Company, which has the equipment and experience to conduct such rescues. Firefighters dug the man out using shovels and by hand until he was freed.

After being freed from the hole, Sloane was taken by Trimble County EMS to Baptist Health in Louisville to be checked out as a precautionery measure. Long said the compression of collapsed soil can sometimes cause internal "compartmental injuries" so the decision was made to seek medical evaluation.

A post by Sloane's wife, Robin, on his Facebook page said Sloane, himself a paramedic with the Oldham County EMS, suffered "soft tissue and nerve compression injury" and is now home resting but experiencing "severe hip pain" from the incident.

Chris Myers wins Indiana crown

sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's Chris Myers won his third Indiana State B.A.S.S. Nation Championship over the weekend at Patoka Lake near Jasper.

Myers hauled in seven fish on eight bites for a total of 25.23 pounds to win a field of 110 boaters and 110 non-boaters.

The win catapults Myers to the Central Division Championships, which will be held at a location and a date to be determined later. He will be one of eight Pro Anglers and eight Co-Anglers to represent the state of Indiana against 16 other states.

"This is the same event when I competed at Toledo Bend, Many, Louisiana in March 2018 and caught that 11-pound, 6-ounce largemouth bass that won the Big-Bass prize for that BASS Nation Central Division Event," Myers said. "It is the same path through which I hope to return to the Bassmaster Classic (that I competed in on the James River in 1989)."

Tereshko within 4; Mefford misses cut

sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's Brandon Tereshko sits just four strokes back at the midway point of the Indiana Amateur Championship at Purgatory Golf Club in Noblesville.

Tereshko

Mefford

Tereshko, a 2010 graduate of Madison High School and the current head golf coach at Hanover College, recovered from a rough first round 75 on Monday to fire a four-under 68 on Tuesday to move himself up 40 spots and place him tied for 14th overall with a one-under 143 (75-68).

Evansville's Ben Hoagland sits atop the leaderboard with a five under after two rounds with a 139 (70-69). Eight players sit one stroke back at four-under.

Recent Southwestern graduate and future Purdue Fort Wayne Mastadon Hunter Mefford didn't fare as well in his first Indiana Amateur. Mefford followed a first-round 83 with an 85 on Tuesday and finishes in 140th place with a 168 (83-85).

Two of Tereshko's players at Hanover College also qualified for the event but also missed the cut. Charlie Bullerdick, from New Market, finished tied for 86th with a 156 (71-85) and Caleb Lung, from Nappanee, was 146th with a 174 (93-81).

The third and fourth rounds will be contested on Wednesday and Thursday.

US wants win vs. Swedes, even if means tougher path to World Cup

By ANNE M. PETERSON
AP Sports Writer

LE HAVRE, France — Victory is the goal for the United States in its group stage finale against Sweden, even though a loss might give the Americans an easier path through the knockout rounds of the Women's World Cup.

"I think it's in our team's DNA to want to win and do really well," defender Abby Dahlkemper said Tuesday, two days ahead of the Group F finale.

The defending champion U.S. and Sweden both enter with two wins and have clinched berths in the round of 16. The top-ranked Americans have the better goal difference and with a win or draw would play Spain in the round of 16 and could face No. 4 France in a quarterfinal at Paris' Parc des Princes and No. 3 England in the semifinals.

The team that finishes second in the group meets the Netherlands or Canada in the round of 16, then could have a quarterfinal against No. 2 Germany, which would not have the backing of a large home crowd the way host nation France does every match.

U.S. coach Jill Ellis says she can't convince her players not to tackle in practice, so asking them to hold back against Sweden is a losing cause. Ellis thinks it is dangerous to try to tailor results based on possible matchups.

"We want to win every game, so I think that's where we're at and that's what we want to do," Ellis said. "I think if you get too much into manipulating or planning or overthinking something, I just don't think that that's a good message."

The United States has played Sweden six times in the group stage at the World Cup, including a 0-0 draw four years ago in Canada.

They met again in the quarterfinals at the 2016 Olympics, where the Swedes — led by former U.S. coach Pia Sundhage — bunkered in on defense and advanced on penalty kicks after a 1-1 draw. It was the earliest exit for the Americans at an Olympics. U.S. goalkeeper Hope Solo infamously called the Swedes "cowards."

The only meeting since then was a 1-0 U.S. win in a 2017 friendly at Goteborg.

After the U.S. opened with a record-setting 13-0 rout of Thailand, Ellis changed seven starters in a 3-0 win over Chile.

"If you want to go far in the tournament, you've got to have (fresh) legs," Ellis said, explaining her rotation.

No. 9 Sweden started with a 2-0 victory over Chile and followed with a 5-1 win over Thailand.

"It's going to be a completely different match, and it will be very important for us, naturally," Sweden coach Peter Gerhardsson said. "When you go into the second round we'll have more matches against teams like the U.S. rather than matches against the one with Chile. But we have to win the matches to get through it."

No. 13 Spain made its World Cup debut four years ago and was eliminated in the group stage.

"They're both talented," La Rioja defender Celia Jiménez said. "I think any team that qualifies for the World Cup, it's because they're good enough. The U.S. has a really powerful team, they play a direct game, they like to be dangerous, but at the same time I think Sweden is as well a really good team. They also tend to play direct, so they kind of are similar teams."

Louisville leads Auburn 4-1 in suspended game

By ERIC OLSON
AP Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — Weather woes hit this year's College World Series for the first time Tuesday, with the afternoon elimination game between Louisville and Auburn suspended after four innings because of rain and the night game between Vanderbilt and Mississippi State postponed until Wednesday.

The NCAA announced Louisville-Auburn would resume at noon EDT. Vanderbilt-Mississippi State and the regularly scheduled Wednesday night game between Florida State and Texas Tech will follow.

Louisville led 4-1 when the TD Ameritrade Park grounds crew rolled out the tarp to cover the field.

Officials sometimes decide to delay or postpone CWS games when rain is imminent, as was the case Tuesday. NCAA director of championships and alliances Randy L. Buhr said after discussions with meteorologists and stakeholders, the thought was that there would be a big enough window of decent weather to get in a significant portion of the game, if not all of it.

"We got half of it in, so that was a positive," Buhr said.

Another reason officials wanted to start the afternoon game: There could be more inclement weather later in the week, Buhr said. The forecast is favorable for Wednesday, but there are chances for rain Thursday and Friday. Had the forecast been clear for the rest of the week, Buhr said, it might have been decided to postpone both Tuesday games.

Rain began in the third inning, and umpires stopped the game briefly so the grounds crew could rake the pitcher's mound to improve the footing for Auburn reliever Elliott Anderson.

Tyler Fitzgerald homered in the first inning for the No. 7 national seed Cardinals, and Auburn tied it in the second on an RBI groundout. Louisville converted a single, three walks and two errors into three runs in the fourth.

Reds win first two games vs. Astros

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jesse Winker and Derek Dietrich homered off Justin Verlander in the first inning on Tuesday and Cincinnati beat Houston to clinch its first series win in nearly a month.

The Reds won a series for the first time since May 24-26, when they took two of three from the Cubs. The Astros hadn't dropped a series since April 29-May 2.

Winker connected on the fourth pitch from Verlander (9-3). Joey Votto doubled and Dietrich's first homer since May 28 made it 3-0. Kyle Farmer added a homer in the seventh off.

REDS 3, ASTROS 2

Nick Senzel returned from an eye injury and drove in a pair of runs and Luis Castillo pitched two-hit ball into the seventh inning, leading Cincinnati over Houston on Monday.

Castillo (7-1) allowed a pair of singles and walked a career-high six batters, leaving with two on and no outs in the seventh. Shortstop Jose Peraza's throwing error let in a run, and Michael Brantley doubled home another.

Manager David Bell made an unorthodox move to finish it, yanking Iglesias and bringing in Michael Lorenzen to get the last two outs and his third save.

This event has already occurred; the next event to happen at the home will be a summer tea event on June 30. PETS OF THE WEEK

NICOLE

Nicole is a unique, sleek black cat who would be a great house pet. She is great with other cats and would be best in an indoor home that she can call her own. Nicole is spayed and is up-to-date on her rabies vaccination. She is just $45 total to adopt.

These Pets of the Week are being run again due to the high number of cats and kittens currently at the Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter. To adopt a pet, visit the shelter or call them at (812) 273-1788.

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 11 dogs or puppies, and 25 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com

Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m.; Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.; Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. The shelter is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is animal.shelter39@jeffersoncounty.in.gov

All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spay or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "Woof-Trax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. Recent donations have helped get treatment for a beagle with a skin infection and a cat with wounds. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

FIND A PICTURE WITH THE SUN SHINING

Lady Randolph Churchill, the mother of Sir Winston, said, "Treat your friends as you do your pictures, and place them in their best light."

At the bridge table, try to picture the opponents' cards and how to take as many tricks as possible. What end-position must South picture in this four-heart contract? West starts the defense with the club queen, the club jack and the club two. South ruffs and cashes the heart ace, but East inconsiderately discards a club.

East, over North's one-spade response, might have made a takeout double, but preferred to intervene in his strong five-card suit. South's jump to four hearts was a slight overbid, but who would do less?

Declarer seems to have four unavoidable losers: two clubs and two hearts. Try to picture how he might reduce that number to three.

Can you see South at trick 11, holding the K-10-9 of hearts while West still has the Q-J-6? Then, South can lead the heart nine or 10 to endplay West.

However, to get to that position, declarer needs to ruff twice more in his hand. At trick five, he cashes the spade ace. Then, he crosses to dummy twice in diamonds, each time trumping a spade. Finally, he cashes the diamond ace to bring about the position he pictured.

Did you notice that West missed a chance to defeat the contract? If he had shifted to a spade or a diamond at trick two or three, South would have been unable to reduce his heart length sufficiently to execute the endplay.

Talking over a loud friend in a group

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I need to vent here. I have a group of girlfriends, and there is one, "Melanie," who dominates the conversation. Melanie's voice is louder than mine so if I am telling a story or asking a question, she will just blare out whatever is on her mind. Another annoying habit: Even if someone is talking directly to Melanie, she often starts turning her head away from that person and trying to listen to the other girls' conversations. Last night was the final straw. I am finding myself not wanting to participate in lunches or dinners out when she is there. How do I tell her to "shut up"? A few of the other girls feel the same as I do. — Timid Voice

Dear Timid Voice: The thing about loud people is that they usually don't realize they're being loud. Sure, they might know that they have a tendency to be loud, as some friends and family have likely pointed this out to them over the years. But in the actual moment when they are raising their voices 10 decibels above the rest, they lack self-awareness.

All that is to say, Timid Voice, that it's time to speak up. If you're sharing a story and Melanie starts in, take a deep breath, smile and say: "Hold that thought, Melanie. As I was saying..." Repeatedly and kindly bringing Melanie's attention to the fact that she's interrupting should — hopefully — quell the behavior, in time. If not, a candid conversation should do the trick: Ask if she realizes that sometimes she interrupts you, and that it makes you feel less heard. Any friend worth having would make an effort to dial it down after that.

Dear Annie: Please remind people to choose their words carefully with someone who grieves. What you think they need to hear may be what you needed when grieving. Saying, "I'm sorry for your loss" may seem inadequate, but it is OK. You don't know what they need, or want. I had two different pastors say things with no malicious intent that I found difficult. Everyone's grief is on a different timeline. Telling someone they "need to pull up their big boy or girl pants" may wound, giving them the added burden of forgiving you.

If they ask for something, please consider it, even if you say no. If you say no, do it gently, or maybe ask someone else to help. One pastor hesitated about my request for small meals. When I called her to say it was OK if she didn't, she said: "Good. That's really a matter of self-care." When she experienced loss, she had a loving husband and family around her. I do not.

And please, if you cannot cope with someone's display of emotion, don't say, "Get a hold of yourself." Again, a simple, "I am so sorry for your sorrow" will suffice.

I will forgive, and prayerfully forget. We all must when words hurt that were not meant to do so, but I hope your readers will be a bit more aware of what I'm writing about. Thank you. — 20 Days Into Grief.

Dear 20 Days: I am so, so sorry for your loss. Your letter might lessen the suffering of at least one person by teaching others how best to be compassionate. Thanks for your honesty.
